

HETS Chair Message

As Chair of the Hispanic Educational Technology Services (HETS) Consortium, I am pleased to announce the publication of the 2025 Fall Issue Volume XVI of our peer-reviewed HETS Online Journal (HOJ). We invite you to access the publication on the editorial platform available from the HETS website (hets.org/ejournal/), and its dedicated editorial platform at HETS Online Journal.

This issue showcases nine new articles, seven in English and two in Spanish, consistently focusing on innovative research, scientific papers, and best practices in topics related to higher education with a globalized perspective. HETS invites you to enjoy the articles on this Issue and share the Journal with colleagues, academics, students, and administrators involved with higher education.

Among the topics, you can find articles discussing: Perceived Online Teaching–Learning Environment as a Predictor of Student Satisfaction; Shaping Problem-Solvers: The Role of Diverse Methods in Advancing Mathematical Confidence; Academic, Social, and Emotional Impacts of COVID-19 on University Students in Puerto Rico; and Engaging, Motivating, and Strengthening Learning Preferences with Kahoot! in Higher Education.

This Journal, created in 2010, provides high-quality research articles in English and Spanish, covering online teaching, learning, and training topics for the academic community around the world. HETS encourages all those interested in publishing their articles to take advantage of this opportunity to share their knowledge. The deadline for submission of articles for our next Spring Issue Volume XVI is March 16, 2026.

Finally, we welcome our new Co-editor, Dr. Kenneth DiLorenzo, and new reviewers Dr. Naydeen González-De Jesús and Rolando Méndez. We truly appreciate their collaboration and support our Journal. We invite you to join HETS collaborators as reviewers. If you are interested, please send an e-mail to info@hets.org.

We hope you enjoy this Fall Issue!

Best regards and happy Holidays,

Gladys Nieves, P.E.

HETS Chair

President, EDP University